

Union Point GMO-Free Alpaca Supplement

Many folks avoid eating genetically modified foods, and are equally uncomfortable with feeding them to their animals. But what's an owner to do? Over 80% of the corn, soybeans, beet pulp and canola used in the feeds industry is genetically modified. There's a better way.

We've developed, polished and proven our line of GMO-free feeds since 2008, researching and evaluating ways to exclude Genetically Modified Organisms while providing excellent nutrition. At Union Point Custom Feeds we have been building nutrient-dense feeds loved by animals and owners alike since 2001. Our standards for freshness, ingredient quality, dialed-in nutrition and our meticulous quality control stand out in the private label and custom feeds market.

We know a lot more about feeding goats, sheep, cattle, camellids and other ruminants than we did back in Grandma's day. Then it was simple: grass, hay and oats, maybe some corn. Back then, soybeans were a health food and the letters GMO were just letters. Feed wasn't made of "forage products", "processed grain byproducts" or unidentified "plant proteins," GMO Canola hadn't been invented yet, and a feed tag told you when the feed was made and what was in it.

Union Point Custom Feeds is taking the GMO-free philosophy and blending it with cutting-edge nutrition. As the only nutritionist-owned mill in the Pacific Northwest, Union Point is in a unique position to develop formulas that please both animals and their owners.

Our Corn, Soy, and GMO-free Alpaca Supplement contains easy-to-digest Northwest grown alfalfa, oats, wheat, flax seed, pumpkin seeds, brewer's yeast, biotin for hooves and coat, and a proprietary blend of vitamins and minerals that includes better absorbed forms like selenium yeast, chelated manganese, zinc and cobalt. Protein is low and critical minerals are provided in the perfect proportions for the best fiber development and general good health. The formula is pH balanced for optimum rumen health and a calm digestive system and is rich in anti-inflammatories and anti-oxidants so it is as healthy as it is delicious. Vitamin levels are optimized so that the ¼ lb dose delivers vitamins matched to the needs of the alpaca in the Northwest. It's clearly labeled and dated for freshness.

Let us know what you think of it. We already know what your animals will think of it. We've built this and other supplements for over ten years, so generations of alpacas have already approved it.
